Joel Berry is the Director of Finance and Operations at the IACP and has more than 15 years of private and public nonprofit accounting experience. Mr. Berry provides leadership and oversight for all accounting, finance, investment, information technology, and facility activities of the Association. He is responsible for financial strategic leadership, assessing organizational performance against both the annual budget and long-term strategy.

Prior to joining the IACP, Mr. Berry worked as an auditor for eight years with several of the larger regional accounting firms where he gained broad experience with a variety of nonprofit organizations.

He is a graduate of Rutgers University, a member of the AICPA not-for-profit expert panel, and serves as a board member for a nonprofit serving those affected by intellectual and developmental disabilities.
