

CARL MAUPIN
Assistant Director, Education
International Association of Chiefs of Police

Carl Maupin is the Assistant Director of the Education Team at the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The education team develops and delivers law enforcement training and mentoring programs internationally, and conducts management studies, testing, assessments, and executive searches for police departments.

Prior to joining the IACP, Mr. Maupin served for 23 years as a police officer in Hampton and Leesburg, Virginia. He has command experience leading a variety of police units to include serving as deputy chief. His most notable accomplishments include the incorporation of evidence-based practices into police policy and practice, developing interdisciplinary workgroups with the community, and leveraging new technologies in support of police operations. He has helped to operationalize the community policing philosophy in local programs that received the IACP/Cisco Community Policing Award and the IACP/Webber Seavey Award for Excellence in Policing.

Mr. Maupin holds a Master of Arts degree in Emergency and Disaster Management from the American Public University, a Bachelor of Arts degree in History and Political Science from the Virginia Military Institute.
