What are the Training Keys?

Each Training Key consists of a six page, loose-leaf monograph designed specifically to be a concise, authoritative source of law enforcement information. The Training Keys are ideal for roll call training and formal classroom instruction, as well as independent study. The keys are conveniently subdivided to better accommodate incremental training sessions and each includes questions and answers to test and document student learning.

For over 35 years, local and state law enforcement agencies have looked to the Training Keys as the cornerstone of their law enforcement training and education. The program can provide the foundations of professional police work, refine established skills, and place officers on the cutting edge of new developments in law enforcement. The Training Keys have explored over 500 topics covering the full range of law enforcement service and operations.

What do the Training Keys cost?

The Training Keys have been priced so that they are affordable for nearly all law enforcement agencies. For a nominal fee per officer per year, each officer will receive 12 individual Training Keys—enough material for many departments to meet a full year of in-service training needs. In order to be a current subscriber to the Training Keys and receive the most recent issues, an agency must enroll all sworn officers with the exception of command, administrative, and civilian personnel. This policy ensures that an agency-wide, in-service training program can be implemented, and it provides officers with personal training materials that they can refer to again and again over their professional careers.

The Training Keys published in prior years are available electronically. Once your order is completed, you will receive an email with 2-3 weeks with instructions for downloading the documents. Please refer to the enclosed Training Key Index for a numerical listing.
